

Code of Conduct

We're keen to make sure that our event is great for everyone, so we present a code of conduct for the day, which we hope you can follow.

- We want to be inclusive; do not engage in exclusionary behaviour or language against anyone based on their race, gender (binary, assigned or otherwise), disability, mental health, sexual orientation, level of education or age. Don't make exclusionary jokes. Don't even make them "ironically".
- Don't harass people. Unconsented physical contact or sexual attention can constitute harassment, even if it wasn't intended to cause upset. Dressing or acting in a certain way is not consent.
- Aggression and elitism are unwelcome here – it's not a competition.
- Although the event involves social occasions in bars and restaurants where alcohol is served, there is no expectation or pressure to drink alcohol. Don't question anyone's choice of drink. Soft drinks will be available.
- If you're taking photographs, video or other recordings, please make sure everyone being featured is happy for you to do that, and for you to share them if you intend to.

Attendees violating these rules may be asked to leave the event and will not be welcome back to our events in future.

If you are subject to or observe anything in violation of the above, or have any other problems/concerns - please speak to one of our conference organisers, or email info@talkingmathsinpublic.uk. Reports will be dealt with discreetly and in confidence.

Please be aware of your surroundings and the effect your words and actions have on the people around you. We want everyone to have a great time, and treat each other with respect.

Have a great conference!
